Highlights

- The joint speed and density design is unique at every carbon price
- Given density, carbon favors speed if saved stock emits more per dollar than freight
- At fixed density, transit financing raises cost-optimal but not carbon-optimal speed
- At fixed speed, the density threshold weighs facility and lost-pooling carbon
- A small carbon price can favor consolidation even when the carbon minimum is denser