Highlights

- The joint speed and density design is unique at every carbon price
- Carbon favors faster replenishment when saved inventory emits more per dollar
- Financing goods in transit works toward slower replenishment under carbon
- Delivery emitting more per dollar than facilities and pooling favors more centers
- Line-haul carbon affects the number of centers only through speed, modestly